

Speak Truth to Power

Learn how to Advocate for Your Children and to Reform the Juvenile Justice System

Join Us for a 6-week Workshop dedicated to training parents to fight for their rights and the rights of their children by speaking truth to power. The workshop series is one day a week for two hours each class. You will learn about how to get the political system can work for you. The workshops will train you about successful storytelling and discussions to maximize your impact on the Juvenile and Criminal Justice System.

Dates: Wednesdays from 6p –8 pm OR Saturdays from 11 a.m. –1 p.m.

Locations: May Vary

Fact 1: Non-offending siblings and their families face daily consequences because of the criminal acts of a child. In a story shared in an Atlantic forum, a young man writes, “For as long as I can remember, my childhood was spent with my (single parent) mother spending her money, energy, and limited resources on attorneys and visitations for my older brother”

Fact 2: Children need support, especially when they’re wrestling with the incarceration of their sibling, and the family is best positioned to provide this support. Families provide a sense of identity, nurture, and love that is important in keeping children out of prison.

Fact 3: Family engagement in juvenile justice involves establishing a collaborative relationship in which families are partners in both their children’s treatment and in developing the policies, programs, and practices of the system.
